MARCH 2013

Volume 13, Issue 3

COORDINATOR'S CORNER

- With spring around the corner, or so we hope, we will focus on our feathered friends this month with activities that involve birds. Harry and Christine will share information and trivia about birds, we'll learn about birds of NJ and the plants that attract them, we'll make bird houses, feeders and bird nest cookies, and we'll visit the Raptor Trust in Millington. The Trust is always a favorite destination, so sign-up for a great day out at this premier avian rehabilitation facility. The cost is $15.
- Cast members from the high school's upcoming Beauty and the Beast will perform at our March 13 meeting, but why not go see the whole show at NPHS? The Friday, March 15 and Saturday, March 16 shows are at 7:30PM, and the Sunday, March 17 show is at 3PM. Senior and student tickets are $8, adult general admission is $10, and reserved seating is $12.
- Everyone's Irish at the annual St. Patrick's Dinner! This year's celebration is at 5PM on Tuesday, March 12 at the center and includes a meal of traditional Irish food or chicken from Elmer's and entertainment. Buy your ticket for $19 in advance.
- The first Health Fair planning meeting will be hosted at the center on Wednesday, March 13 at 1PM. Many volunteers are needed to make the May 8 event a success, so come by and help us plan it!
- Branch Brook Park's cherry blossom trees burst with color in the spring. On Thursday, March 28 we'll take the bus to Newark to see them, to visit Sacred Heart Cathedral and have lunch at the Spanish Tavern. This trip was popular and fun last year, and we expect the same this year. Sign-up at the center. The cost is $30.
- The UCC Selective Topics in Biology class will meet the following days this month: March 4, 11, 18 & 22. The class will meet on Fridays in April.
- Luckily we are constantly welcoming new members to the center. A list of the individuals who joined since our directory was printed in June is available at the center. Get one to add to the back of your directory. Don't have a directory? What are you waiting for? Directories are only $2 and are available at the center.

Do You Have A Case of CYBERCHONDRIA?

Cyberchondria is a term coined by medical pundits to describe the development of unfounded fears as people research their symptoms online. Many patients today arrive at their healthcare appointments having already researched their symptoms on the Internet. Some seem sure of their diagnosis, having made the decision 'with the help of Dr. Google'. The growing quantity of online healthcare content allows laypersons to access valuable information about their health, but when it comes to diagnosing an illness, the chances are good that the patient will come away with a mistaken idea about what their symptoms mean. In the worst case, patients self-diagnose and treat the wrong condition, meanwhile delaying treatment that would offer a real cure.

Other patients develop unfounded fears and anxiety as they research their symptoms online, or cyberchondria. A patient might spend days worried that a sinus headache is a brain tumor, or that a simple head cold is a rare tropical virus. Many web searchers get caught up in symptom-matching as they try to shoehorn all their aches and pains into one disease.

Seniors are the fastest growing group to go online. The Journal of Health and Aging reports that although seniors are less likely to research their health condition online, they are the most likely to trust the information they find.

Some tips to remember:

- As you research a health topic, remember the best online information comes from websites of respected organizations and institutions.
- The search results we get from layman's terms, like 'funny rash on nose' or 'strange noise in my ear' rather than eczema or tinnitus, often come from discussion groups, blogs, reader forums and chat sites.
- Above all, remember that no matter how reputable a website is, it cannot take the place of advice from your healthcare provider, who spent years in medical school learning the subtleties of the human body.

(Excerpt from an article in The Service Network, a publication from Union County's Department of Human Service Division on Aging & Disability Resource Connection)

The Wind is No More

The wind is no more than a stir of air —
It's exultant laughter, a grateful prayer,
A whisper of hope, a sigh of content,
A hint of peace that is heaven-sent.
It's a mystic song of the earth and sky,
Of all things lovely it passes by.
Yes, the wind is more than a stir of air —
It's a breath of beauty from ev'rywhere.

Rachel Hartnett

SPRING FORWARD!

Daylight savings time begins March 10. Don't forget to move your clocks forward one hour!

March Sayings

When March comes in like a lion it goes out like a lamb.

A dry March and a wet May fills barns and bays with corn and hay.

As it rains in March so it rains in June.

March winds and April showers bring forth May flowers.
