Office of the Chief of Police

Chief Daniel Henn

The members of the New Providence Police Department believe in providing the highest level of service to the citizens that work, visit and call this great community home. Our Officers take the job we do very seriously, continuing to train to the highest standards while engaging law enforcement best practices each and every shift they come to work. This was most notable as our agency was recommended for re-accreditation after a comprehensive reassessment of our policies and procedures in 2022. Our values call for accountability, fairness and respect, which are qualities central to how we perform our duties. Additionally, our agency has always been accessible. We continually invite the public to participate in the service we provide and welcome the valuable insight they offer.

While looking back, I would be remiss to bid farewell to several Officers that served our agency on a daily basis. Chief Theresa Gazaway bid farewell to the Department after 27 years of honorable service. She will always be remembered for her strategic, yet compassionate approach to policing and the impressions she made on our Officers and the public will not be forgotten. We also said goodbye to SLEO 3 Dan Lorimor and SLEO 2 Chris Aversa. These officers worked in our schools and in our community as positive role models and problem solvers. They were valuable assets to our agency, and we wish them the best in their next journey. Fortunately, with goodbyes, we often get to say hello! In 2022, we welcomed 2 new full-time officers, Marcos Martinez and Carly Bouman and SLEO II Ron Guidetti to the ranks of our agency.

If our past is indicative of our future, I am confident of the path this agency is on and expect us to continue to provide an excellent level of service to this great town.

2022 Training Division Report

Captain Stephen Drown

In 2022, Department personnel attended and participated in over 3000 hours of mandated and elective training. Officers voluntarily attended classes related to emergency management, school-based incidents, advanced supervision and leadership, crimes scene processing, digital evidence recovery, DWI enforcement, drug recognition, and traffic management.

Our agency held mandated firearms, rifle, taser, use of force, pursuit driving, domestic violence, and CPR recertifications. To coincide with the extensive communication, intervention, and de-escalation training our officers received from the Union County Prosecutor's Office in 2021, our officers received advanced defensive tactics training this year from Corporal David Rodriguez and Detective Andrew Lynch. These two officers became certified with specialized training in Defensive and Survival Tactics from the Gracie Survival Tactics University of Jiu-Jitsu. These instructors developed lesson plans with hands-on training to ensure that our entire agency received this vital training.

Our expanded training assignments also included mental health and special needs crisis training, hazmat, right to know, detention facilities training, harassment in the workplace, and continued education for field training officers. This year, Officer Kevin Gutierrez joined the Union County Emergency Response Team (UCERT) where he is receiving advanced training in civil disorder, crowd control, and active shooter. Officer Jeffrey Bruder became a certified Drug Recognition Expert where he has utilized this training to detect the presence of controlled dangerous substances in drivers who are suspected to be under the influence.

In 2022, much of the training that our officers received was from our own resources, utilizing the expertise that our officers have built through years of training and experiences. A large percentage of our agency has provided this internal training while others have also dedicated their time to training new police recruits at the John H. Stamler Police Academy. These officers are the lead or assistant instructors for functional policing areas such as Title 39, radar certification, crash investigations, EVOC, Firearms, Domestic Violence, Report Writing, and Defensive Tactics. The following officers instructing at both the John H. Stamler Police Academy and our agency.

Youth Academy

The New Providence Police Department was able to hold the Youth Academy after a several year hiatus due to the Covid-19 pandemic. This program provides children with insight on how police officers perform their duties and what sources are available to them. Students learn about motor vehicle stops, crime scene processing, police job assignments, and how our department works with other agencies including the New Providence Fire Department, Emergency Medical Services, Union County K9, Union County Police Drone Unit, Union County Bomb Squad, UCERT, and SWAT.

PATT Program

For the past several years, the New Providence Police have participated in Police and Teens together at the New Providence High School. The program consists of Juniors and Seniors from Byron Tracy's Criminology class and New Providence PD School Resource Officer Dennis Carovillano. The purpose of this program is for students to interact with police officers to learn about their professional and personal lives. It also gives students the opportunity to learn about police practices, laws, and interactions. After these discussions, the students get to participate in mock motor vehicle stops. This allows students to be in simulated situations that officers deal with on a regular basis.

2022 National Night Out
